

Carl Emmerson - Writer/Director

Diagnosed with Autism around 4 years old, Carl has worked to overcome the challenges that it has impacted on his life, finding his love of the creative process through being a Star Wars die-hard and leading him into the world of filmmaking. After working on a number of school-based film projects, Carl now attends the Canberra Institute of Technology, studying Screen Media. He also has been hosting multiple radio shows on 2XX Canberra since 2014. Most recently, Carl has been engaged in a mentorship program with Canberra film production company Sanguineti Media, working on a series of smaller projects. Eventually, he aspires to make a Spaghetti Western with a particular focus on its mash-up of Ennio Morricone-esque/hip-hop soundtrack. Or a Star Wars movie.

Dan Sanguineti - Producer/Writer

Dan Sanguineti is a Canberra based Producer and Writer. He has a Masters Degree in Creative Writing and Bachelor of Communications specialising in Media and Multimedia Production. He has taught film production and editing at the University of Canberra and at the Canberra Institute of Technology (CIT). He is an experienced editor, producer and digital cinematographer, and he has produced four feature length films including Australian Zombie Comedy, Me and My Mates vs the Zombie Apocalypse. It also was officially selected for the Sitges Fantastic Film Festival.

Michael J. Watson - Producer

‘Mikey’ Watson co-produced Me and My Mates vs the Zombie Apocalypse, a Zombie Comedy Feature. He has directed music video projects as well as worked on numerous other short film projects. He attended Cannes Marche du Film with Screen Canberra and regards it as one of his career highlights so far. Mikey has been intrigued by the ‘how’ of film since a child and is always open to lending a hand to all aspects of production.
